Brixton Centric shortlisted for two Sunday Times British Homes Awards

Muse Developments' Brixton Centric scheme has been shortlisted for two prestigious Sunday Times British Homes Awards.

The mixed-use development is in the centre of Brixton and includes 94 new build apartments and the complete restoration of the historic art-deco Ivor House into 26 characterful homes and ground floor commercial space. It was delivered in partnership with the London Borough of Lambeth and sister company, Morgan Sindall Construction.

Brixton Centric has been shortlisted for Mixed Use Development and Ivor House for Development Transformation.

The scheme forms part of the wider Your New Town Hall project, a major regeneration scheme in the heart of the borough which has delivered a modern and sustainable 120,000 sq ft new civic offices, the restoration of the Grade II Listed Lambeth Town Hall, new homes and new civic and community spaces.

James Stockdale, senior development manager at Muse Developments, said: "The Sunday Times British Homes Awards are highly regarded throughout the industry as recognising the very best residential developments.

"The Your New Town Hall project has sensitively restored a unique historic building and created new homes in an unrivalled central location. It has contributed to the success of the wider regeneration project which has also delivered a new civic office, restored town hall and new commercial space, so I'm delighted it's been shortlisted for these awards."

The winners will be announced at an awards ceremony on Thursday 19 September at London Marriott Hotel Grosvenor Square.
