Muse announces Leeds relocation

Mixed-use development and urban regeneration specialists, Muse Developments, has moved offices, highlighting its commitment to staying in Leeds City Centre, following a period of expansion in the region.

From Friday 13 July, Muse will move from its current home on South Parade, round the corner to 6 East Parade. The move allows for a flexible working environment for colleagues, as well as room for growth and expansion.

Regional director, David Wells, said: “This move is a statement of our intent to continued expansion in Yorkshire, the North East and East Midlands. We have invested significantly to improve the services we provide to our partners.

“The diversity of our work is a real strength for Muse and our new office base will provide the perfect platform to continue to grow in the region.”

Muse is leading on a range of multi-million pound projects in the region, including Logic Leeds – a 100 acre manufacturing and distribution park, with high-profile tenants including Amazon, John Lewis and Premier Farnell, The Gables – 43 family homes under construction in Doncaster, along with a 500 place Performing Arts College developed on the last remaining plot at the English Cities Fund’s Merchant Gate scheme.

The main switchboard number will remain as before as will email addresses.

The fit out was designed and undertaken by Muse’s sister company, Overbury. JLL acted for Muse and Savills and CBRE for the landlords.
