Scott joins Muse's Yorkshire and North East team

Muse Developments has appointed senior development surveyor, James Scott, to further strengthen its Yorkshire and North East team.

James joins the company from Leeds-based Wilton Developments, where he was responsible for the identification, acquisition and on-going management of investment and development opportunities. He brings with him more than 15 years' experience in the property sector.

He joins Muse to work on their expanding development portfolio in Yorkshire, the North East and the East Midlands.

Dan Needham, regional director for Muse Developments, said: "I'm delighted to welcome James to Muse. We're currently working on some really exciting schemes across Yorkshire and the North East, such as Doncaster Civic and Cultural Quarter, Northshore in Stockton on Tees and South Shields 365.

"We've had a number of important developments in the pipeline which are now reaching major milestones, so it's an ideal time to utilise James' expertise and in-depth knowledge of the region's property market."

James commented: "I'm extremely pleased to be joining Muse at such a busy time for them. They're leading some really interesting projects, which I'm very much looking forward to working on."
